

Evidence-Based Clearinghouses

Evidence-based clearinghouses are online, free databases created by government agencies, research institutions and other groups. They help policymakers, practitioners, and others to access credible research about different program models. This memo lists well-known clearinghouses, with web links. Although not every policy area is covered by a clearinghouse, these can be valuable for conducting program evidence reviews. With questions about utilizing these resources, contact OEI.Questions@tn.gov.

Results First Clearinghouse Database

- Results First—<https://evidence2impact.psu.edu/what-we-do/research-translation-platform/results-first-resources/clearing-house-database/>—brings together information from several other clearinghouses, making it a useful place to start for many evidence reviews. It draws from:
 - Blueprints for Healthy Youth Development
 - California Evidence-Based Clearinghouse for Child Welfare (CEBC)
 - The Laura and John Arnold Foundation’s Social Programs that Work
 - The U.S. Department of Education’s What Works Clearinghouse (WWC)
